Dear Members,

We are growing and enjoying so many new events together.

Our first HarborChase venture is on January 26th in Palm Beach Gardens from 3 - 6. If you are not participating in this you can still come there to see what it is all about. There will be food, wine tasting, drinks and music. This is all complimentary to us from HarborChase.

Many of our artists are professional, winning awards , teaching and selling their work. Many are just starting out and growing artistically. We are proud of all of you.

We already have new shows in different venues planned for 2025. Keep on painting. Let us know what you are doing.

Join us on our Zoom demo meetings. You will enjoy the demo and learn.

We need volunteers to help us in many different ways. Let me know if you can help.

February is the month of Love.

We are embarking on a unique Art Show and Sales initiative with HarborChase in three south Florida locations.

Since 2002, HarborChase has been a leading senior living housing industry with a mission to develop and manage exceptional communities by providing best-in-class hospitality, resident programs, personalized care and superior cuisine.

As part of their life enrichment programs, they have asked Palm Beach Watercolor Society to hold an Art Show and Sale in 3 of their South Florida facilities: Palm Beach Gardens, Wellington and Boynton Beach. (See schedule below.)

Each artist is allowed to bring in 2 -3 pieces of art, which will be displayed throughout the facility, from 3 to 6pm. (Artists are requested to bring their own easels if possible.) HarborChase will provide a complimentary themed cocktail bar, a wine tasting bar and 3 complimentary food stations during the event. They will be advertising the events on social media, to the residents' family, to their contacts, and to the public. They will also advertise each event on Legends Radio and in local newspapers.

In order to participate, you will be asked for a $10 donation to PBWS scholarship and arts supply fund. You will pay and enter your information thru www.palmbeachwatercolorsociety.com. A link has been set up on the SHOWS page with the link to Swipe Simple . You can start applying now.

MEET OUR FEBRUARY 8th DEMO ARTIST

Liz Walker
Watercolor Artist & Teacher

February 8th, 2024, Member Meeting Via Zoom

Watercolor Reimagined

Valley Watercolor Society - ZOOM Meeting

Demo by Oregon artist Liz Walker, NWS, NWWS

Liz Walker has been creating watercolor and acrylic paintings for over 20 years. She is a sought-after instructor who paints every day and has developed innovative ways of transforming old paintings into brand-new works of art that have appeared in many national exhibitions.

In her demo, Liz will show you how to treat papers with matte medium, creating texture and pattern and demonstrate how she applies watercolor and gouache to this unique surface. There will be a discussion of composition and value considerations, and an informative slideshow led by this award-winning instructor.

Liz uses familiar watercolor pigments and papers in a new way. Her use of acrylic matte medium creates a new painting surface from which color can be lifted out and reapplied without creating “mud”. It adds to and enhances traditional watercolor pigments, creating texture and areas of visual interest in paintings.

Liz Walker, who creates award-winning paintings in her studio in Portland Oregon, has been teaching for nearly 20 years. She received her BA in Art from Trinity University in San Antonio, TX. Her work has been exhibited widely in regional and national shows, and her Signature memberships include: NWS, NWWS, ISEA, and WFWS. Liz’s work has been published in Watercolor Artist Magazine, Artist’s Magazine, and the North Light publications AcrylicWorks4 and AcrylicWorks6.

Ask the WATERCOLOR DOCTOR

by Carol Z. Brody NWS, TWSA
czbrody@carolzbrody.com
www.carolzbrody.com

QUESTION: When can one all oneself an “artist”? I don’t always feel right telling people that I am one, but I sometimes feel it inside.

ANSWER: This is a very interesting question, which each one of us considers at some time in our artistic journey. Sometimes we are forced to confront the question when someone asks what we do. The PBWS membership spans a wide range of artistic experience and achievement, and so the answers will undoubtedly vary from person to person. So just who gets to call herself or himself an “artist”? Can it be quantified by certain standards?

There are those of us who are very dedicated to making our art, who spend hours thinking about it and working at it. But we seldom show our work or participate in the art scene in any measurable ways. Yet we feel deeply that we are artists, and we want to call ourselves such.

In contrast, there are certain specific events in our artistic careers which can propel us toward considering ourselves to be counted as artists. These include having one’s work published, winning a number of awards, having a one person show, getting accepted into quality juried exhibitions and becoming a signature member of a high level watercolor society which juries for this honor. When these things start to happen to you, you inevitably begin to see yourself in a more professional way. Your feelings of commitment to your work increase, and your attitudes about who you are begin to morph into something new as well.

My own artistic journey, which has included all of the above, seemed to happening a series of small steps, over a period of years. With each early achievement, I questioned whether I could call myself an artist without feeling it was all really a hoax. But as my accomplishments mounted, I suppose there was no denying it, and I stopped feeling self conscious saying it. Nowadays, in most cases I prefer to say I’m a watercolorist, rather than an artist. I like the specificity of it, and I feel that perhaps it sounds a bit less boastful.

In the end, it’s up to each one of us to determine the right answer and the right time for that to be appropriate. Good luck along your artistic journey!

Please keep sending your questions to me at czbrody@carolzbrody.com. I'd love to hear from you!
